Unveiling the Origin of an Icon

The story of the Colony Club Tablecloth begins in the early 20th century, at the exclusive Colony Club in New York City. As a haven for social elites and prominent figures, the club commissioned a series of handmade tablecloths to adorn its dining rooms. Among these was the masterpiece that would become known as the Colony Club Tablecloth.

Designed by renowned crochet artist and author Sarah Coventry, the tablecloth captivated all who laid eyes on it. Its intricate lacework, featuring pineapple motifs and floral clusters, exuded an ethereal beauty that elevated any gathering. Over the years, the tablecloth became synonymous with sophistication and became a highly sought-after piece among discerning hostesses.
